When to Sell Fatness Cows.
One difficulty in selling fattened cows arises from trying to dispose of them at the time of year when the market is glutted with fat. Butchers, as a rule, do not like to handle cow beef, but during May, June and July (and in the winter fattened stock has been weaned off and the market is bare. The farmer who has milked and fed liberally a milk cow until the other cows came in calf in April will have her in good order for feeding when turned out to grass. American Cattle Raisers recommend a course of the grain food five or six weeks and as soon as the milking is stopped the cow will fatten rapidly and make sweet, tender beef. This is a great deal better than selling the cow thin as they do in the fall for a price. A farmer who will feed the winter female making a good crop of valuable manure. The extra feeding while the milking gives such value to the digestive system that old cows which dried off after such an experience will fatten very rapidly. The quick fattening is the secret of making good and tender beef.

Unusual Cases.
A correspondent writing to Hurd's Dairyman, who has had considerable experience with cattle bloating from eating clover, claims to have had great success with a remedy composed of oil as a remedy. He gives to the affected animal a tea cup two-thirds full of kerosene and allowed oil mixed in equal parts. He says: To prevent bloat, about a week before you turn the cows to a clover pasture give them a teaspoonful of kerosene in some bran or feed of some kind. Kerosene is good for cattle. In the spring give them a quart of a teaspoonful and they won't bloat, nor will it do them any harm, but it will give them as speed.

A Short Chapter on Lethal.
There is only one thing that is 100 times as funny and revolting by turns as a lamb, and that is 200 times as funny when they are about a month old. The shepherd sits down and watches the 300 lambs all in a bunch by themselves playing, running and frolicking, and he laughs. When he has the lamb, and tries to raise it, to get the same 300 across a bridge or into a corral he sits down again, but he does not laugh. This time a writer in Rural Home, who adds a young lamb has no way of telling which way is its mother, and the mother only knows what time is low owing to the secret. Hence, while very young it is a bad plan to have too many together, or the ewe may be confused by so many lambs, or because partially indifferent and the lamb perish for want of care. When a few weeks old, however, they know each other by the sound of the voice. In a band of two or three thousand, a ewe may call her lamb, and the lamb will answer from the other side of the flock. They will go straight to each other, right through the whole band, as they would if they were the only two animals for a mile around.

The Harvest Home.

So many of our citizens were present at the Harvest Home Dinner in the Opera House last night that it would hardly be necessary to write anything about it were it not to let people at a distance know something of what we are doing in the onward march to the great future that God has designed for this district.

The Hall was profusely decorated with artistically arranged bunting interlarded with sheaves of golden grain. Over the stage and on the walls were a number of appropriate mottoes such as "Welcome to our Harvest Home," "Eat, Drink and be Merry," "Peace and Plenty," "God bless Alberta." Provision had been made to feed 600 persons, and it is estimated that fully that number partook of an ample dinner, and still the supply was not exhausted.

When the tables were cleared, the president of the Agricultural Society, Amos Rowe Esq., called the meeting to order. He delivered a humorous speech, in which he reviewed the rise and progress of the Society during the 4 years of its history. Referring to the 96 acres which the Dominion Government had sold them so cheap that it was almost a gift, he stated that the Society had expended nearly $4,000 in beautifying and improving the grounds already and they intended as soon as their means would permit to add two wings to the Hall, build more cattle sheds, improve the speeding course, etc., etc. We think he should have added plant trees. The show this year though not as good as the country was capable of making, was in advance he said of other years, and is a complete financial success. He complimented the ladies for their untiring efforts in the interests of the Society, which had culminated in the magnificent entertainment given here tonight.

The choir organized for the occasion by Mr. A. Allan, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Allan, Miss Patterson, Miss O'Meara, Miss Jones, Corporal Saunders, Dr. Rouleau and Mr. Atkinson sang the "Dominion Hymn" in good form. Mrs. Millward presided at the piano.

The president then called on A. M. Burgess Esq., Deputy Minister of the Interior, who addressed the audience for a few minutes. Mr. Burgess said if he possessed any "fort" it was not public speaking. Government officials he said were expected rather to work than speak. He would however say that it afforded him great pleasure to be present at this great gathering which excited both his surprise and admiration. He had visited the Northwest many times and on each successive occasion he noticed wonderfully increasing marks of advancement and prosperity. He visited this district 1881 and he did not believe there were as many ladies at that time in the whole valley of the Bow River and South Saskatchewan as there were present in the Hall now. The speaker referred at some length to the impressions that used to prevail that this was only a cattle country and that if an attempt were made to raise grain and it escaped the frost, the gophers would eat it up. But these were now exploded theories of the past. The evidences given on the fair grounds to-day and to be seen in this Hall to-night were sufficient alone to knock the bottom out of such nonsense. He predicted that in a very few years Calgary would be a very large city surrounded by a densely populated agricultural country. He took his seat amidst a shower of applause.

Mrs. Jarrett was called on and rendered a solo on the piano which was well received and applauded.

The Rev. D. B. Lucas was the next speaker. He said he must congratulate the committee upon whom rested the responsibility of the Agricultural Show and the Harvest Home for the great success achieved, and felt that he ought to congratulate himself too in having an opportunity of being present on this festive occasion. He said, I am a Canadian and have heard much of this district, but I must say as the Queen of Sheba said when she visited King Solomon, "The hall had not been told me." He spoke of the buffalo paths and walls which abound, as being evidence that nature had directed buffalo to this part of the country to live, where the climate is the mildest, the grass the richest and the water the purest that can be found anywhere in the west. He repeated the estimate made to him by a mining engineer of the amount of coal in sight from Anthracite to Red Deer as being 600,000,000 tons and that 50 per cent better quality than any coal on the Pacific Slope. The speaker, who has travelled on every continent of the world, said he firmly believed from what he had seen and learned, that Alberta was equal to any part of the world in resources and climate. He paid a high compliment to the ladies of Calgary for the deep interest they took in the prosperity of the Agricultural Society and the large numbers in which they were present. After reciting some interesting anecdotes, he closed a forcible and interesting speech.

After the close of the Rev. Mr. Lucas' address, a trio sang "Gentlemen of England," in very good style. Mrs. Bouchere presiding at the organ.

The Rev. John McDougall of Morley was next called on to address the audience. The Rev. gentleman said that it had only been a short time before that he would be expected to speak and he began to think what he should say. Presently one of the mottoes on the wall caught his eye "Peace and Plenty" and he thought that would be a good text for a few thoughts. He said his mind was led to look back over a period of years in this country to a time when there was plenty but not peace. The time when there were myriads of Buffalo roaming over this valley and they could get plenty of food such as it was, but there was no peace or safety. The stealthy Red Man was ever on the alert for his opportunity and the few white men obliged to be constantly on the watch. Then a change came and there was neither peace nor plenty. The buffalo disappeared and there was nothing to take their place in supplying food. Want and discontent were rampant, trouble and strife were on every hand. But again the scene has changed, and now we have both peace and plenty on every hand. We enjoy all the advantages of refined society and have cultivated minds amongst us. We are able to show to those in the east who visit us as fine and prosperous a country as any in the world. Ministers and Deputy Ministers visit us and they go back to Ottawa informed of our wants prepared to provide legislation to assist us in developing our heritage and he believed that with our good system of government, reliance on God and a determination on our own part to develop the agricultural and mineral resources of the land of our adoption, we certainly have a great future before us. Quoting some stanzas from the silver poet, Charles Kingsley, he closed an address full of fire, faith and patriotism.

The choir next gave a "Glee" which was much appreciated by the assembly. The president said he would now introduce to them a fighting Irishman who would always be found with a black thorn in his fist.

Mr. John White ex M. P. of Belleville then took the platform. Mr. White said the president had called him a fighting Irishman, but he was as much of a Canadian as the president, had a Canadian wife and 8 Canadian children. He only wanted 10 minutes to make his speech in. Before entering on his subject he paid a high compliment to the Deputy Minister, Mr. Burgess, who was present. The speaker had known Mr. Burgess for many years, from being a newspaper reporter in the House of Commons up to the honorable and responsible position he now fills with so much zeal and satisfaction to the people of the Northwest.

The speaker then went on to contrast the present condition of things in Calgary with what they were four years ago. At that time the people were a growling, scolding, dissatisfied community. Now they are contented and happy, everyone wearing a smiling countenance. This, he thought, must be the result of having their wives, daughters and "best girls" with them. Having large interests in the Northwest he frequently visited the country and was more surprised each time to see the improvements made during the which would elapse between his visits. He stated what Mr. Moody had told him four years ago would take place here, that there would be in a few years a network of railways converging at Calgary and that this would be a second Denver. He did not take much stock in the prediction at the time, but he now began to believe that Mr. Moody was a prophet. The speaker related a conversation with the Bishop of Rochester in which that dignitary spoke of the scenery to the west of Calgary as being the most sublimely beautiful of anything he had ever seen in the world. In reply to Mr. White's question if he did not think it showed great pluck on the part of the Canadians to build a railway through those mighty mountains, Pluck, said the Bishop is no name for it, it showed audacity. Mr. White wound up by saying he firmly believed Alberta which is rapidly filling up with English, Irish, Scotch and Canadians each with their noble characteristics, would in a few short years consolidate into a nation of five millions and that Calgary would rank amongst the first cities of America, holding a commanding position.

Major Walker, in a vote of thanks on behalf of the society to the ladies for their labors connected with the Harvest Home. The motion was seconded in a neat speech by Mr. Carney and unanimously carried. After singing the National Anthem by the choir three cheers were proposed for the ladies by Mr. FitzGerald and three for the Queen by the president. The floor was then cleared for dancing, which was kept up till 2:30 a.m.

GENERAL.

Church of England.

Services will be held at Red Deer and Blind Man's Rivers on Sunday Oct. 20th inst. by Rev. H. B. Collier. Morning service at Mr. Roderick McKenzie's at 11 a. m. Afternoon service at Mr. Whitford's house, Blind Man at 3 p. m. and at Red Deer crossing at the N. W. M. P. Barracks at 7 o'clock p. m.

Inquest on Edward Lindgren.

Coroner Grant Mackay with the following jurors, James Reilly, James Linton, R. H. Moody, Joseph Maw, Charles Watson and A. J. Ellis, Mr. Reilly foreman, held an inquest at the barracks at 4 p. m. on Saturday, Oct. 12, 1889, on the deceased Edward Lindgren. After viewing the body and hearing the evidence of five witnesses, the jury returned a verdict of suicide by self strangulation while in a state of unsound mind. It is reported that the unfortunate man some months ago left a will in the hands of Mr. Costigan, crown counsel, and another copy with Mr. Shaw at Fish Creek.

Sir John Macdonald.

A few years ago when Sir John was resting on his laurels, his friends were studying what they could do to comfort their leader and furnish new "Sins of War," for the "coming struggle." At a critical moment two babies were presented to him for his adoption. One was the "Rag Baby," the offspring of N. Clark Wallace, M. P. of York. The other was the National Policy Baby offered, as shown by Grip in his cartoon at the Opera House last evening. After a close examination of the juveniles seeking admission into the political family of Sir John, he chose the National Policy Boy and adopted him, he has since grown to sturdy manhood and is known to every one in Canada. While "Rag Baby" is still in its swaddling clothes, and has to feed from a nursing bottle.

Second Day of the Show.

The gates will be open for the admission of live stock at 8 a. m. and may be entered up to 11 a. m. The judges will begin their work at noon and complete their judging by four p. m., at which time all prize animals will be admitted to the ring for public inspection. At 4:30 there will a farmers' green race and other speeding. The Agricultural all will be open all day to visitors.

At six p. m. the Harvest Home dinner will materialize in the Opera House and continue in session until 9 o'clock. After dinner is through with, speeches will be delivered by the president of the Agricultural Society and others and it is expected that some distinguished speakers from a distance will address the audience. After the speeches there will be music and dancing. The committee of ladies have arranged for first class music.

The band of "E" Division N. W. M. P. will enliven the scene on the grounds with such fine music as they are celebrated for during the afternoon.

Queer Things.

Rev. D. V. Lucas gave a very amusing and instructive lecture in the Methodist Church last night to a large audience.

In his opening remarks he referred to the natural resources of Australia, which although very great are yet in his estimation inferior to those of Canada.

Mr. Lucas' description of the animals and birds of Australia was most interesting. His account of that rare avian, the laughing jackass, with his queer ways and his peals of merry laughter in the bush and about the homes of the people, was most intensely amusing.

Mr. Lucas lectures again this evening in the same place at 8 o'clock on "Queerer" things in Australia.

He describes tonight the natives and their funny customs, and describes that very queer and mysterious weapon the boomerang. Go and hear him.

Suicide at the Barracks.

The name of the man who committed at the Barracks cells was Edward Lindgren. His age is supposed to be about 30 years. He was a Swede by birth. He has been in this country for several years and was a very industrious, sober and well educated person. Two years ago he worked all winter getting out logs at Palliser. At the time of his death he owned a farm near Sheep Creek and was up to a few weeks ago doing well. Feeling that his mind was giving way he made a will and bequeathed his property to his betrothed in Sweden. He got it into his head that some one was trying to kill him by putting poison in his clothes, and came to town for police protection. He went to board at Mrs. Chapman's and last Monday David Hartley, Mrs. Chapman's son, swore out a warrant against him as a dangerous lunatic. He was brought before George Murdoch, J. P., on the same day and committed to the N. W. M. P. jail for safe keeping. While in charge of Chief Dillabough the man insisted on having a change of clothes and having those he had been wearing boiled for three hours and the water boiled down to one pint so the poison could be extracted from it. We defer giving any statement about the manner of his death till after then inquest which will be held this evening.

Inside the Agricultural Hall.

In taking a cursory glance round the hall a HERALD reporter noticed quite a number of exhibits which were partly or altogether of Calgary make, which speak well for the enterprise of our merchants, manufacturers and artists. Amongst the exhibits which deserve particular notice are E. R. Rogers & Co., of stores and furnishings. The stores, of course, were made in the east, but the furniture and many other useful articles in their line are manufactured by the firm in Calgary.

HUTCHINGS & RILEY.

This enterprising firm had some splendid harnesses and saddles, and many other articles in their line, all made at their factory in Calgary. They had one saddle in particular which was admired by every one, and while exquisitely finished, was solid and durable. No better leather can be found than this saddle is made of. It took first prize which it well deserved. To our own knowledge this firm have filled several orders for saddles for the Eastern Provinces for gentlemen who have visited Calgary during this summer, and say they could find no such goods made in Toronto or Montreal.

A. J. ROSS.

The display made by Mr. Ross is a credit to our young town. Mr. Ross deals not only in pictures and photos, but in musical instruments. He had on exhibition a Mendelssohn piano and a Dominion organ. They were both highly finished. The case of the piano is of the most modern make, the old stereotyped box having been abandoned. But it is in photos that Mr. Ross excels, some idea of his skill may be formed when he makes even town councillors look like honest men.

J. W. CLARK & COMPANY.

The exhibit of this firm in pianos and sewing machines was admired by all the ladies who visited the Hall. The firm deal in the piano made by the celebrated Mason & Risch, Toronto, one of whose pianos the Princess Louise bought and took to England for her own use. They had one of these fine instruments in the Hall. They are also agents for the new Vaseline made by R. S. Warren & Son, Toronto. Messrs. Clarke & Co. also had a number of sewing machines on exhibition, comprising "The Improved Family Machine," oscillating shuttle, "The Vibrating Shuttle" and the "Drawing Room Cabinet," all of which are manufactured by the Singer Co., Notre Dame Street, Montreal. Persons desiring to purchase any of the above should visit the store of J. W. Clarke & Co., before leaving.

Queen Natalie appears to be losing something of her popularity in Belgrade, owing to her absolute refusal to listen to any proposals of the Regents looking to an amicable settlement of the vexed questions raised by her arrival at the Servian Capital.

Soldiers have gone into action many a time with no finer courage or steadier devotion to duty than Justice Field showed when he went into California with a full knowledge of the fact that the Terrys had sworn to have his life. "I do not by any means underestimate threats of that kind," the Justice said to his friend before leaving Washington, "but I am prepared to go there and sit on the bench as usual. It would be preposterous in this country, with its institutions, if a Judge were to be deterred from sitting on the bench by the threats of such ruffians as may desire to intimidate courts."

On going to the top of the great Eiffel tower, Mr. Edison wrote in the visitor's book as follows: "Top Eiffel Tower, September 10, 1889.—To M. Eiffel, the brave builder of so gigantic and original a specimen of modern engineering, from one who has the greatest respect and admiration for all engineers, including the great engineer, the bon Dieu.—Thomas A. Edison." He subsequently wrote his name upon Mlle. Eiffel's fan, which forms a valuable collection of autographs, bearing the signatures of all the princes of the blood royal and the princes of science who have visited her father's chef d'oeuvre.

Alberta Bank Company.
The adjourned meeting of this company took place at the Town Hall last night, the President in the chair. The canvassing committee reported that over $1,500 had already been subscribed towards the purchase of the lots necessary for a rink and for the erection of the rink itself. Some discussion of the relative advantages of the property north of Mr. Harris' house, and the property east of the Methodist Church took place, it was finally decided to continue the canvass for subscriptions on the understanding that the latter property was to be purchased. The meeting then adjourned.

Mr. Lindsay Russell.
We do not think that Mr. Russell's first visit to Calgary should pass unnoticed. Although he has now ceased to have any connection with public affairs, at one time his name was a familiar one in the Northwest, and it is needless to say was always held not only with the highest respect but with those who ever came into contact with him, deep affection. Mr. Russell is a very old timer in connection with the west. First in 1857 and 8 on Professor Hind's and Mr. S. J. Dawson's exploration of the Duck and Riding Mountains, afterwards in 1871 as inspector of surveys, surveyor general and then deputy minister of the interior, which latter position he held until 1882, when he was obliged to retire from ill health. It is well known what a capable man he was when filling more responsible positions and how much regretted he was when he was obliged to retire. We think his visit here will be a pleasant one and that he will have no reason to regret his coming to Calgary.

A Model Son in Hard Luck.
An incident occurred in a neighboring "rural district" last spring by which the beauty and strength of the holy tie which binds father and son were strikingly illustrated. The scene was a tavern; time, evening. Stranger drives to the door, alights, enters barroom and thus accosts the landlord:

"I say, yew, ain't there a Squire L— lives here in your place?"

"Yes, Sir."

"Wall, I heard he had a Irishman as worked for him last year that wants to hire. Y'you know him?"

"I do, sir, but he has let himself; I have hired him."

"Have, eh? well, that's bad. Don't know any good likely feller as wants to let reasonable, do ye?"

"I do not, sir."

"Thunderation! I've had the darndest luck ever ye see; here I be, time to go to work most, frost out of the ground, team in prime order, and haven't no help. My name's B—, I live out in B—; got considerable of a farm there. Last summer my brother helped me, but he got so along in the fall he wanted wages, and I couldn't raise 'ford to pay him none, so he quit. Well, then I took the old man—my father, arter work was about over, an' I've kept him all winter long, calc'latin' he'd help me this year, and here 'bout three weeks ago, the contrary ole skunk would go and watch with a neighbor as was sick. Look cold cold, and—darned if he didn't do it so I j's a good's lost all his keepin' and haven't no help, after all. Well, good day, I must hunt up somebody."

And the model son departed.—Boston Traveller

WILKIE COLLINS'S PERSONALITY.
"Wilkie Collins, to those who met him on his visit to this country, was a very curious personality," said a veteran theatrical agent in the Philadelphia Inquirer. "I shall never forget the first and the only time that I came into communication with him. It was in December, 1873. I had gone after midnight into the bar of what was then Tommy Ryan's hotel, at the corner of Broadway and Union Square, New York, and is now the Morton House. Perched on a high stool before the eating counter with his knees drawn nearly up to his chin was a little man in solemn black clothes. The position in which he sat, his small body, his large head, his strong features, his gold spectacles, and his bushy hair and beard, then showing more silver than black threads, would have attracted anybody's attention. He was eating an enormous mass of roast oysters and drinking Dublin Porter. Presently Mr. Dolby, who was first known in this country as the man who first brought Charles Dickens over here for his reading tour in 1853, came in, and the little grey man hopped off his stool to join him in a drink at the bar. I knew Dolby, and Dolby's friend was introduced to me as Wilkie Collins."

SWEETLY ACCOMMODATING.
"George," said Mabel, "is it really so that young men object to buying ice cream?"
"I don't know as it is," said George.
"Because if they do I would just as soon have a little terrapin stew any time."—Merchant Traveller.

The growth of the south is rapidly assuming proportions which make it almost more marvelous than the rapid development of the west. During the past three and one half years alone, over 11,000 new industrial establishments have been constructed and over 8,000 miles of railroad, though it is to be remembered that that section of the country was comparatively well served with railroads before that date. An even more tangible evidence that the south is adding wonderfully to its resources is the growth of the agricultural products. In the past ten years, the total product has gained from $571,000,000 in 1871 to a moderate estimate of $900,000,000 this year and the value of the live stock, a very clear index of agricultural prosperity, which, in 1879, was $391,400,000 is now estimated in a conservative way at $575,000,000. It is undisputed that though last year showed the largest crop all over the south ever raised up to that time, this season will far surpass it. Not only from the industrial journals published in the south, but from every person who has occasion to go there, the most flattering reports are received of the industrial outlook in that section.—Boston Advertiser.

The City Fathers Discuss Water-works.

A special meeting of the Council was convened in the town hall at 8 o'clock last night. Present, his worship Mayor Marsh, Councillors Orr, Grant, Murdoch and Fitzgerald, and the town clerk Mr. E. P. Davis.

The first business taken up was making an appropriation to defray the expense of erecting an arch on Stephen Avenue, rearing and lighting the Opera House etc., etc. on the occasion of the approaching visit of His Excellency the Right Hon. Baron Stanley, Governor General of Canada. The plan of an arch was submitted by Mr. James Reilly. Suggestions were made by Mr. A. D. Braithwaite, chairman of the citizens' reception committee, as to some details. It was moved by Coun. Fitzgerald and supported by Coun. Orr and carried that an appropriation of $100 be made to assist the citizens' committee in carrying out the reception programme.

It was moved by Coun. Orr, seconded by Coun. Grant, that block 85 of section 15 of the C. P. R. townsite be granted by the townsite trustees to the municipality for a park, he taken off the assessment roll as it now belongs to the town.

A committee was struck consisting of the Mayor, Councillors Orr, Fitzgerald, Bannerman and Murdoch to draft the amendments which it is proposed to ask the Legislative Assembly to make at the coming session, which begins on the 16th of this month, to the municipal ordinances.

The waterworks question was then taken up. Mr. Peter McCarthy was present on behalf of the Water Works Company and Mr. George Alexander to give his views about raising capital in the Old Country for building the works. A resolution was passed that Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Alexander be permitted to address the Council on their present plan of raising the necessary money to go on with the work, also to explain what the company wanted in the way of an extension of time etc., etc.

Mr. McCarthy said that the reason they had asked the mayor to call a special meeting of the council was because Mr. Alexander, who proposed to raise the money in England for constructing the works, wished to leave for the old country in a day or two and wished to know what final arrangements the council would agree to before he leaves. He went on to say that according to the preliminary agreement with the council the company were to submit their plans, etc., of works by the first of last June. This was done, but the council asked for a considerable number of changes to be made, one of which changing the site of the pumping station from the foot of McTavish street to the head of Northcote Avenue, which would entail cost of $15,000 to $20,000 extra. An offer had been made both by the company and the council to obtain a site for the pumping station from the Dominion Government which had failed. The company had agreed to all this and all other changes asked and were prepared to go on had the site been obtained in time to begin work this summer. The company were in a position to show letters from capitalists in the east who had offered to put in the works and take the bonds of the company in payment, but the company would prefer getting the cash through Mr. Alexander to build the works, as it would give them plainer sailing. Now the company are in treaty with Mr. Alexander to raise the money, and they desire to have everything made plain to him and ourselves as to our position with the council before he leaves town. Mr. McCarthy went on to say that the company were willing to grant the council's bill of rights and were also willing to procure the needed land for a site themselves so near the one chosen by Mr. Rutton the council's engineer, that there could be no objection to it from a sanitary point. The company now ask the council to extend the time for commencing to build the works till the first of September, 1890, and also to renew the time to commence boring for natural gas to the same date. He went into an explanation of their legal position by the powers granted them by their charter which is too long for our columns. He held that the time they were asking was not more than might be needed to get the capital subscribed in England. Mr. McCarthy asked that the council should join the company in a memorial to the Legislative Assembly to extend the time granted by the charter to commence boring for gas, which expires on the 15th of November, 1889.

Mr. Alexander said, my position is quite dependent on what the Council may do in this matter, with Water Works Co. I have only been face to face with the question for the last 4 or 5 days and while I feel confident that I can get the requisite capital subscribed in England if the matter is placed on a business basis. At the same time I wish to guard against any guarantee beyond this, that I will do all I can to secure the capital. In looking over the plans and specifications of Mr. Keefer, I think it will take about $100,000 to build the works, and that is quite a little sum to raise in many questions were asked and answered pro and con by the Mayor and Councillors and Messrs. McCarthy and Alexander. The chief objections taken by the Council to the request of the Company were the long time asked to begin work and the ambiguous language of proposed contract as to the terms provided for purchasing the works by the Council. It was finally decided by resolution to adjourn the discussion to a meeting of the Council as a committee of the whole at 10 o'clock this Thursday morning.

A resolution was passed authorizing the committee on public works to determine where the poles shall be placed on the streets by Mr. Prince's electric lighting company as provided by the Council's franchise.

The Council then adjourned.

ledge of farming of which he made good use while with Sir Lester Kaye in Canada. His family, like himself, are practical farmers, one son being manager of the Walrod Ranch Co., while, of sons and two daughters equally practical are now living on their farm at Willow Creek. They reaped a venty acres of crop this year which will be largely increased in the future. Every business man in Calgary wishes Mr. Mollison and his family a prosperous future.

The wild goose almanac is no longer reliable. The old theory of the flight of wild geese southward just preceding a storm is exploded. For several days before the agricultural show geese were seen flying south in tens of thousands, but they did not effect the weather in the slightest, it being bright and beautiful and still continues so fine that it is the marvel of the many visitors now here.

A meeting of the committee of the Town Council appointed to consider amendments to the municipal act which it is considered desirable to have made by the Legislative Assembly at its coming session. The Mayor being engaged on other municipal business, Councillor Orr took the chair. There were present also Councillors Murdoch and Bannerman. The meeting was held in the office of the city solicitor, E. P. Davis. Several important amendments were discussed and progress made.
